Never Has Trump Ever is a political party game made to socially cope with never-ending Trumpisms. Just when you think there are no more surprises, all tweets break loose. Inside this box are 224 alleged Trumpisms. Is Trump guilty or not guilty? Take a guess!

Gameplay

Remove all the cards from the box, shuffle them, and place them on the table. The player who lives closest to the White House begins the game as the "President."

The President picks a card from the pile and reads the phrase out loud, starting with "Never Has Trump Ever..."

Did Trump do it or not?! First, all cabinet members vote using their paddles. Feel free to debate (kick, scream, yell, hug)! Then, the President casts their vote... and it's verdict time!

WARNING: The answer is in the lower right-hand corner of every card, so the President should cover it with their totally-not-small, fantastically huge thumb when it's their turn to read. See figure below.

The President checks the card to see if Trump is guilty or not guilty. Then, the President completes the action based on whether they are "RIGHT" or "WRONG." If the President guesses correctly, they keep the card.

After the President's turn is over, the player to their left becomes the new President.

Keep playing until the group collects 20 cards or until you officially forget that the last few years ever happened.

Feel free to display your collected cards face up, on Trump's "Wall of Shame." We all know how much he likes walls.

P.S. Copious amounts of alcohol and Googling speeches by President Obama may help.
